We Come By Faith:
African American Churches, Civic Engagement and Social Change Conference
August 21, 2010 8 am to 5:30 pm
NCCU Elder Student Union
Durham, NC

YOU ARE INVITED

On the eve of the forty-seventh anniversary of the 1963 March on Washington, the Institute for Civic Engagement and Social Change and its partners are sponsoring a conference designed to support and strengthen African American churches as vehicles of civic engagement.

There are four conference objectives: 1) To present the results of the North Carolina Black Church Civic Project, a statewide survey of African American churches about faith and civic engagement; 2) to assess the historical and contemporary role of the Black church in civic engagement; 3) to provide churches the opportunity to learn and share best strategies that encourage civic engagement, especially through the use of technology; and 4) to promote policy advocacy that addresses critical issues such as education, economic development, and redistricting.

Who Should Come

Clergy and laypersons of all denominations and faiths who seek to improve the quality of life of their communities through vigorous, robust civic engagement. Youth are encouraged to attend.
